

GENERAL EDUCATION OUTCOMES

The rationale for general education is grounded in the belief that students should be provided with a strong foundation in liberal arts education. The general education curriculum aims to develop the whole person and prepare students to become well rounded leaders who are committed to intellectual growth. Upon completion of the General Education program, students will have the ability to:

- Function effectively in academic disciplines, leadership roles and professional careers.
- Demonstrate technological competence and knowledge of the applications of technology in everyday life.
- Understand and apply scientific inquiry.
- Communicate with precision, clarity, and fluency in communications.
- Appreciate and understand the arts and humanities.
- Appreciate and understand the importance of a healthy and well-balanced lifestyle.

Understand multiculturalism and global issues.
